BOXES 6s. PIT 3s. 6d. GALL. 2s. Upper GALL. 1s.
No Money to be returned. Books of the performance to be had at the Theatre.

BOXES. The Box Office, for the present, is in Little Russel-Street, opposite to the Theatre, where Boxes and Places are to be taken of Mr. FOSBROOK,

The Box Doors are in Little Russel Street and Woburn Street.

†† The whole of the Avenue, and the New Street, not being yet complete, Ladies and Gentlemen are particularly requested to direct their Coachmen to set down in Little Russel Street (where alone the Carriage Box Doors are at present) with the Horses heads toward Covent Garden, which is the only line in which Carriages can be permitted to pass. Carriages wanting to draw up after the performance should be directed to range in Drury Lane, toward Long Acre and Great Queen Street.

†† The Chair Doors and Footway are in the Court in Woburn Street, where for the accommodation of Ladies who may wish to have their Carriages wait out of the Croud, Chairs belonging to the Theatre, and under proper regulations will attend.

☞ In order to keep the Colonnade quite clear no Servants can be permitted to wait there, but those belonging to the Carriages actually drawn up before the Pillars, and no Servants, whatever, can be permitted to pass the Doors of the Lower Saloon.

PIT DOOR. The Temporary Pit Passage is in the center of the Theatre, in Bridges-Street, which leads to a Spacious Saloon, which will be opened One Hour before the opening of the Pit Doors. All Carriages for the Pit Door, are to wait in Catherine-Street, or York-Street, to take up with the Horses Heads towards Little Russel-Street, and to pass through Great Russel-Street.

GALLERY DOORS. The Gallery Doors, for ADMITTANCE, are in Little Russel-Street, and Woburn-Street: but, after the commencement of the Performance, the Gallery Doors, for the present, can be only in Woburn-Street.

†† Every proper precaution is taken to prevent Croud and Inconvenience at the several Passages.
The Doors to be opened at a Quarter after Five o’Clock; and to begin precisely at Half after Six.

Monday July 7. -

NB. This being the last night of performance for the season, Mr. Hambro, in the name of the Proprietors and Performers, addressed the audience in a speech, in which he thanked them for the support and encouragement they had met with during the season, at the same time, assuring them in the name of the Proprietors that every exertion would be made during the summer recess, to provide a succession of novelty in the entertainments for the approaching season, which the want of a deficiency of new scenes machinery and decorations had hitherto unavoidably impeded, and also that every attention would be paid to the exterior buildings of the theatre so as to render the whole worthy the attention and patronage and support of an enlightened and generous public.

DRURY-LANE.

THE RIVALS REVIVED.—MISS FARREN.

Nov 7 1794. — Left

This enchanting Actress made her first appearance at this Theatre on Wednesday night, and brought with her those graces of action, person, and utterance, for which the stage is so infinitely indebted to her.

It is to us astonishing that a Play like The Rivals should ever have met with any objection from an Audience that, like ours, can discriminate. It is, perhaps, the most decided proof to what strange extremes opinions in matters of taste may run—a Play, that on its first introduction, was nearly hissed from the Stage, is now the most attractive of any in the Prompter's list.

And where can be found such colloquial vivacity—such genuine humour—such refined sentiment, as in this Comedy; and where also is there to be met with such finished acting as in Julia Falkland, Lydia Languish, and the Absolutes:—I were needless to search for it.

Dodd is very entertaining in Acres; and David had more from Bannister than perhaps any other Actor could give.

The Scenery is some of it quite new; but is principally formed from the old flats, re-touched by the painter, and enlarged according to the dimensions of the stage.

The Stage, however, is somewhat contracted and of course the canvas will not be hereafter so expensive an article. We do not approve of the crimson decoration under the Royal Arms—nor of the ornaments to the stage doors. They do not at all harmonize with the house, and completely destroy its effect. Had the colour been light blue this confusion would have been avoided; and the assimilation with the sky and wings would be nearer to nature.

20. At his house in Store-street, Bedford-square, Mr. Baddeley, comedian, of Drury-lane theatre. Mr. B. had many good qualities, and among these a persevering friendship was very conspicuous. Having been nearly ruined by the expences his wife's dissipation brought upon him, he for several years reduced himself to a plan of the most severe economy, to obviate the probable consequences of those expences. He was taken ill on the evening of the 19th, as he was about to dress for the character of Moses in the School for Scandal. His remains were interred on the 27th in the church-yard of St. Paul's, Covent-garden. The hearse was followed by three mourning coaches, in which were several gentlemen of the society to which Mr. B. belonged, called The School of Garrick, and which was formed immediately after the decease of Mr. Garrick, and consisted of such performers only as had played with him; but, as the society began to get thin, this rule was broken through, and other performers were admitted by election. The manner in which he has left a bequest to the theatrical fund is honourable to his feelings. That the decayed actors, who are to be chosen by the fund committee as tenants for his house at Hampton, may not appear like dependants on charity in the eyes of the neighbourhood, he has also left a certain sum to be distributed by those tenants to the poor of the vicinity. There is also to be a little summer-house for those tenants to smoke their pipes in, and it is to be so situated as to command a view of the temple of Shakespeare, erected by Mr. Garrick. This summer-house is to be composed of part of the wood that belonged to old Drury-lane theatre, the scene of Garrick's excellence and fame. The wood was bought on purpose for this object. The sum allotted for an annual twelfth-cake is three guineas, expressly to make the future sons and daughters of Thelxis remember an old friend and member of the profession over a regale of cake and ale. Thus will Baddeley's cake and ale float for ever down the stream of Time with Dogget's coat and badge. Mr. Wroughton and Mr. Braad are his executors.—The body was opened by the celebrated anatomist Wilson, the lecturer. Upon the brain, in a very unusual cavity, a considerable quantity of blood had coagulated. His death must necessarily have been instantaneous, and attended with little pain.

Miss ARNE, Grand-daughter of the celebrated Dr. ARNE, is to make her appearance at Drury-lane Theatre, in the part of Folly, in the Beggar's Opera.

Yesterday the remains of Mr. BADDELEY, the Comedian, of Drury-lane Theatre, were brought from his late house in Store-street, Tottenham-court-road, to St. Paul's, Covent-garden, and interred in the Church-yard, near the tomb of the late Mrs. SHERRY, who formerly belonged to the same Theatre.—The hearse was followed by three mourning coaches; in the first of which were two particular friends of the deceased, with Mr. AICKIN and Mr. MOODY; and in the others, Messrs. HOLMAN, DODD, WROUGHTON, two BANNISTERS, FARREN, KELLY, and BURTON, all Members of the Society called the School of Garrick. Most of the other performers of both Theatres were present.

BADDELEY was opened by Mr. WILSON, the Lecturer. Upon the brain, in a very unusual cavity, a considerable quantity of blood had coagulated. His death must necessarily have been instantaneous, and attended with little pain. Nov 28 1794

Alexander the Great went much smoother this evening than at our first representation. But the Professor, owing to the same inconvenience, is as yet but indifferently converted.

After our last evening's complicated, was this evening exhibited by the first fine drawing of the Professor, the beautiful effect of which I am not ashamed to say, together with the various carous of 3 Medallions and another carous with Sophia's drawing, a smaller drawing drawn by Sophia and another all of which truly and with Durand's 3 D. medallions, added to the amusement in Durand and the Professor in person, produced the most perfect that ever was exhibited on a stage.

1. The first of these is the fact that the majority of the population of the United States is now living in urban areas. This is a result of the process of urbanization, which has been going on since the beginning of the 20th century. The population of the United States has increased from about 100 million in 1900 to over 200 million in 1960. At the same time, the population of rural areas has decreased from about 100 million in 1900 to about 50 million in 1960. This has led to a concentration of the population in urban areas, which has had a number of important consequences. One of the most important is that it has led to a change in the way of life of the majority of the population. In rural areas, the population has traditionally been engaged in agriculture, and the way of life has been based on the rhythms of the seasons. In urban areas, the population has traditionally been engaged in industry and commerce, and the way of life has been based on the rhythms of the clock. This has led to a number of differences between the two ways of life, including differences in the amount of leisure time, the amount of social contact, and the amount of participation in community activities. These differences have led to a number of problems, including the problem of social isolation, which is a major problem in urban areas. This is a result of the fact that the majority of the population in urban areas is now living in high-rise apartment buildings, which are often designed in a way that makes it difficult for people to interact with their neighbors. This has led to a sense of isolation and a lack of community spirit, which are both major problems in urban areas. On 11 October 1967, the following were observed:

SHAKESPEARE. Norfolk-street, March 9, 1795.

MR. SAMUEL IRELAND begs leave to acquaint the Public, that the literary treasure which has recently fallen into his hands, forming an interesting part of the works of our divine Bard Shakespear, is now arranging, and will speedily be put to press.

This Publication will consist of a variety of authentic and important documents respecting the private and public life of this wonderful man. An original complimentary letter from Queen Elizabeth, under her own hand, and authenticated by that of the Bard; original deeds, contracts, and other instruments relative to his theatrical concerns; an original correspondence with a noble personage, upon a transaction nearly interesting to himself; together with the expression and feeling of his very soul upon a subject the most momentous that can occupy the thoughts of mortal man. All these papers, except the legal instruments, are in his hand writing, and these latter under the hand and seal of himself and the parties concerned. In this Publication, will likewise be given a copy of the Tragedy of King Lear, from the manuscript in the hand-writing of Shakespear. This copy will be found materially to differ in various particulars of much curiosity and interest, from any edition of that play now extant. In this volume fac-similes will be given of all his miscellaneous manuscripts, and of the title-page and first and last leaves of the play, which Mr. Ireland flatters himself will be deemed sufficient specimens of the whole. The Work will be farther illustrated with engravings from original drawings which have been found amongst the manuscripts above mentioned, and which will add new lights to the history of the British Stage, of which Shakespear may truly be denominatèd the mighty father. This Publication will be comprised in one volume, to correspond with the edition of Shakespear now printing at the Shakespear Press, and will, the Editor flatters himself, be ready for publication on, or before, the King's Birth-day.

The price of this volume will be Four Guineas. Subscriptions taken in at Mr. Faulstich's, New Bond-street, and at Mr. Egerton's, Whitehall, where Subscribers may receive a card of admission to view the original papers, at the house of Mr. Samuel Ireland, Norfolk-street, Strand, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, between the hours of Twelve and Three.

Mr. Ireland informs the public that with the above papers was discovered an historical Play, founded on the story of Vortigern and Rowena, taken from Hollinshed, and which is in the hand-writing of Shakespear. This Play being intended for theatrical representation, will not be printed 'till the eve of its appearance on the Stage.

Saturday, March 21. - Edw and Eliza . . . 10. (Humble)

The New Lady of Edw and Eliza went off very bad and on an attempt being made by Mr Barrymore to give it out for a second representation, such a disapprobation was shown to the audience that they would not even hear him speak. Mr Humble therefore, after consulting the author, went on and informed them that the tragedy for the present would be withdrawn and gave out the Wheel of Fortune for Monday and the Hammer for Tuesday next - after which every thing was quiet. Spectators Mr Humble, W. Quince, at the Opera House.
